ONE DAY WORKSHOP

ON

ACCOUNTABILITY, LEADERSHIP AND TEAM WORK AT WORKPLACE

Many colleges focus on technical skills only as important success factor to success in the workplace. Yet strong interpersonal skills, accountability and team work are equally essential in transforming individual contributors into exceptional performers who have a greater impact in their teaching roles.

SOCET organized a motivational leadership program for all the faculty members on 25th January 2014. The program was talking about developing the powerful set of interaction skills that will enable them to communicate more effectively with colleagues and students; building trust, strengthening partnerships, and achieving desired results along the way.

This workshop enables individuals to not only focus on technical skills but also faculties learnt how to develop other non technical aspects with which they can become a good mentor and a facilitator rather than just a teacher.
Workshop included interaction with faculties, simulations, games, PowerPoint presentation, videos followed by question and answers. Participants also learnt about tools and resources available for building a friendly classroom environment.

This workshop was mentored by a very well learned speaker:

Mr. Deepak Bhatt
Strategic Management Consultant cum Management Thinker

This workshop enables the organization to work in teams effectively and efficiently and achieving common organizational goal. Faculties left this workshop with recognition of the impact they can have on their own success and the success of others by enhancing interpersonal relationships, accountability in the workplace.
