Why Internship?

Doing an internship is very important for Civil Engineers, because the engineering field is about creating designs and executing projects, not just analyzing and coming up with theories. You can spend years of studying, performing calculations and making hypothetical designs yet never grow as an engineer. In order to truly understand why calculations are made, what is crucial for a design, how to deal with clients and their demands, you need to spend some time at a company and see how these are handled in real life. Without doing an internship, you might have a very different idea of what you are good at and what you enjoy doing. Therefore, spending a semester in the line of work that you intend to grow in is crucial to making a realistic decision about your future career.
